● About the International Conference :

We have a pleasure to say here that we are organizing this conference in the context of 'Azadi ka Amrit Kal'. The present international conference aims to bring a common platform for academicians, thinkers, Critics, researchers engaged in भारतविद्या (Indology), the Sanskrit, Pali and Prakrit languages and literature therein, other Indian classical languages and tribal languages with their history, culture, customs, traditions and folklores etc. The present conference is designed to explore various academic branches of learning that have shaped Bhārata; such as textual study of classical texts, archeology, linguistics, history, philosophy, anthropology, manuscriptology etc. An attempt is made in the present conference to overview these disciplines in nutshell and focusing on certain relevant aspects of these disciplines. Some of these branches of learning have been originated in Bhārata (India) whereas some are applied to Indian Knowledge Systems. These are studied and developed by Indian as well as western scholars. Both these scholars have developed their own methods and arguments to study these texts and disciplines. Scholars participating in the conference are requested to take note of the arguments and methods adhered by these scholars. Till this date scholars of Western as well as Bhārataiya (Indian) are trying to search various aspects of Bhārata. This international conference is an attempt to look at Bhārata from various perspectives as well as to introduce Bhārata through the texts and various academic disciplines to the young generation. The broad aim of this conference is to focus on the languages, cultures and memories of Bhāratavarsa. Moreover, it is necessary to know about ancient India to go along with NEP 2020 as it has clearly focused on Indian Knowledge Systems.

There will be special lectures and presentation on some related themes. The following subthemes form major thrust areas of the present international conference
